For this week's writeup, tell me about your formative studies!

Your writeup should cover:

1. Who are your formative study participants?
2. What data are you collecting?
3. How are you going to analyze that data?
4. How will you use this analysis to shape the rest of your work? (If your project is purely focused on need finding, feel free to skip this question.)

As long as your writeup answers the questions above, it satisfies the spec! But here are a few other questions to inspire you. Feel free to pick and choose the ones that are relevant for your project.

- How are you recruiting the participants, and why did you choose to recruit this way?
- What protocol are you using during sessions with participants?
- What activities are your participants completing?
- How are you keeping participant responses connected to their context/avoiding relying on self-report and introspection?
- What techniques from class inspired your formative study design?
- What alternative study designs did you consider, and why did you choose the one you chose?
